Summary of project:

Referencing materials found at a New York City construction site, Raul Mourão's sculpture emphasizes the importance of reflecting upon what we build every day through our actions, opinions, and words.

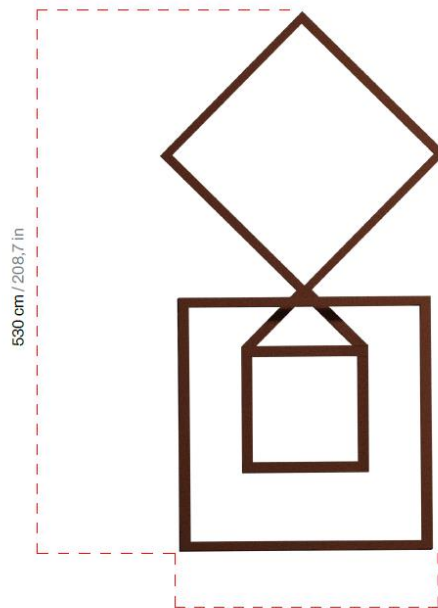

The sculpture will be self-supporting and will not require any anchoring. The base will be partially buried. The sculpture is kinetic - it rocks back and forth slightly if external force is applied, but the range of motion is limited.

Exhibitor will present signed and sealed engineering drawings for review by the MTA Metro-North.
