A PROPOSAL FOR

The East Village Enhanced Commercial District

What is an enhanced commercial district?

It is an area governed by a set of land use regulations that address neighborhood concerns about local commercial corridors at a finer level of detail than standard zoning controls can. The regulations are layered on top of the district's existing zoning. Half a dozen enhanced commercial districts exist throughout the city.

Why does the East Village need one?

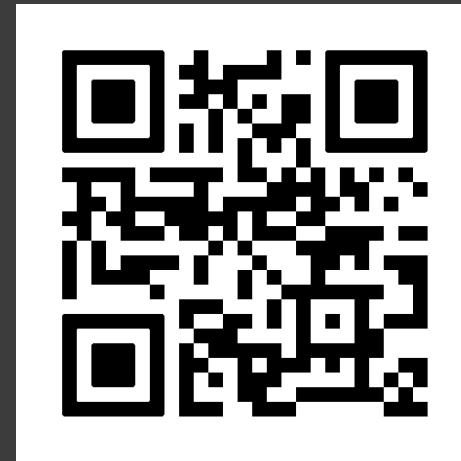

An enhanced commercial district would support independent small businesses and preserve the neighborhood's unique character. Over the past decade, demand by national chains and destination nightlife establishments has led to the displacement of numerous "mom & pop" shops and businesses that serve the local community, and it has unbalanced the retail mix throughout the neighborhood, undermining daytime foot traffic and deadening street life along numerous corridors.

What would an enhanced commercial district do?

It would help restore a balance among independent local retail and its corporate and destination counterparts. This would encourage a combination of establishments that can continue to meet neighborhood needs and generate daytime activity; and it would prevent an excess of businesses that have a disruptive nighttime impact on residents.
